Hi, my name is Malik and i'm studying the Master in Game Design at the ZHdK. The informations you provide for this survey is a part of my Master thesis and it will help me to create a toolkit for Game Developers, who want to design a relaxing game experience for the players. You don't need to be a game developer to fill out this survey. You can write here your name or username if you want:

How many hours do you spend, on playing video games per week?

3

Do you play video games to relax?

Yes

4

Please name at least 3 video games, which offer in your opinion a relaxing experience, with an explanation as to why you feel relaxed (more answers are also welcome):

All games are ultimately relaxing for me. I don't play competitive.

Anything turn-based or purely story-driven is super relaxing for me.

Please name at least 3 video games, which offer in your opinion a stressfull experience, with an explanation as to why you feel stressed (more answers are also welcome):

Overcooked can be stressful because of the other players.

I see people getting stressed at Smash Bros because they don't understand what's going on.

I personally get stressed with competitive MMO

Thank you very much for participating, you can type here other comments, in regards to relaxing game experiences. Please share this survey with other people, to get as many valuable information as possible!

A lot of people play games to relax, and even hard/masocore games are relaxing for them. I'd prefer 'tranquil' or 'soothing' or something like that.
